

counsel was needed to maintain public confidence in the investigation. "In-house investigations, as honorable as they might well be, don't sell the public on the fact that they are independent," he said on ABC.

While Hyde said he retains his confidence in Reno as attorney general, Gingrich was sharply critical of her for not telling White House officials the FBI suspected China was planning to make illegal campaign contributions. Reno has said she telephoned national security adviser Anthony Lake, failed to reach him and never called back.

"If you're the top law enforcement officer of this country * * * wouldn't you say to the White House, 'Gee, the president and the secretary of state ought to know we think the Chinese communists may be trying to buy the American election?'" he said.

House Majority Leader Richard K. Arney (R-Tex.) suggested Reno is victim of the political pressures within the administration.

"This is a person that would like to be professional and responsible in their job, and that makes her out of place in this administration," Arney said on CBS's "Face the Nation." "She is in a hopeless situation. * * * If I were Janet Reno, I would just say 'I can't function with people that stand with these standards of conduct and behavior and I'm leaving.'"

On another topic, Gingrich said the United States should "consider very seriously" military action against "certain very high-value targets in Iran" if there is strong evidence linking a senior Iranian government official to a group of Shiite Muslims suspected of bombing a U.S. military compound in Saudi Arabia last year.

"We have to take whatever steps are necessary to convince Iran that state-sponsored terrorism is not acceptable," he said. "The indirect killing of Americans is still an act of war."

The Washington Post reported yesterday that intelligence information indicates that Brig. Ahmad Sherifi, a senior Iranian intelligence officer and a top official in Iran's Revolutionary Guards, met roughly two years before the bombing with a Saudi Shiite arrested March 18 in Canada. According to Canadian court records, the man, Hani Abd Rahim Sayegh, had fled Saudi Arabia shortly after the June 25 bombing that killed 19 U.S. servicemen and wounded more than 500 others.

JOHN PIDGEON'S 40TH ANNIVERSARY AS HEADMASTER OF THE KISKI SCHOOL

• Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I have sought recognition to acknowledge John "Jack" Pidgeon's 40th anniversary as headmaster of the Kiski School in Saltsburg, PA. John is well known to many Pennsylvanians for his excellent career in education and also is the proud husband of Pennsylvania's State treasurer, Barbara Hafer.

Forty years ago, John Pidgeon left a position at the Deerfield Academy to assume the position of headmaster of the Kiski School. In 1957, he became the youngest headmaster in the United States. Today, he is the longest serving headmaster in the country. In this capacity, he has worked to stabilize the school's finances, develop the campus, and build upon its outstanding academic reputation.

When John first arrived at the Kiski School, the institution's infrastructure was suffering and its deficit was rising.

Under his direction, the school raised funds for a campus face lift, built a strong financial foundation, and stabilized enrollment. Throughout his career, he has emphasized the value of courtesy, ethics, discipline, high moral standards, and quality of education. By establishing a philosophy that combined these values in the school's education program, he has prepared Kiski boys to meet the challenges and opportunities they will face in the future.

I ask that the text of an article in the September, 1996 Kiski Bulletin be printed in the RECORD.

The article follows:

KISKI—THE SCHOOL THAT JACK BUILT

Forty years ago, John "Jack" Pidgeon left a secure job at Deerfield Academy to become the Headmaster of The Kiski School. As the new headmaster, he not only ran the School, taught classes, and coached sports, but also initiated a major face-lift of the deteriorating campus. Along with no entrance road and few athletic fields, the school had no desks or chairs in some dormitory rooms, lacked water for days at a time, and suffered a $200,000 deficit. The students willingly pitched in to paint and clean up the school grounds.

Before 1957, Kiski never received a donation larger than $10,000. Today, the 350 acre campus is the envy of both independent schools and liberal arts colleges. Under the direction of the Headmaster, the School has completed over a dozen substantial fund-raising campaigns and added:

Daub Hall, 1961.
The Field House, 1962.
Heath Clark Classroom Building, 1967.
The Indoor Swimming Pool, 1967.
McClintock Hall, 1968.
Vlahos Hall, 1968.
The Dining Hall and Infirmary, 1976.
Sheesley Hall, 1978.
The S.W. Jack Sports Center, 1983.
The Stephen C. Rogers Fine Arts Center, 1984.
Schoenbaum Center, 1985.
The John A. Pidgeon Library, 1993.
Six faculty homes.
A new dormitory in planning for 1997.

Today, campus buildings are worth over $5 million, and the School has an endowment of $20 million.

The campus enrollment is 250 boys, 225 boarders and 25 area day students. Over the past decade, "Jack's Boys" have come from six continents, 30 countries and 28 states of the U.S.

Jack Pidgeon came to Kiski as the youngest headmaster in the United States. Today his forty years of service make him the longest serving headmaster in the country. In addition to building a school with a superb physical plant, a sound financial basis, and a stable enrollment, Jack Pidgeon prides himself on placing high value on courtesy, ethics, discipline, morals, and a quality educational program. "Kiski Boys" are prepared to meet the challenges and opportunities they will face in the real world.

The man who played in the same backfield with actor Jack Lemmon and the same field with President George Bush at Phillips Andover Academy left a secure job teaching Latin at Deerfield Academy and took the leap of faith in coming to Kiski. He has, in his dynamic years as headmaster, built a school that has had a positive effect on the lives of thousands of young men. Every year, these young men receive a personally signed birthday card from the man who cared enough about their future that he risked his own on their behalf. •

MARINE CADETS OF AMERICA

• Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I rise today to honor a national organization based in my district in Connecticut and headed by Col. George F. Keyes USMC (ret.), its current president. The Marine Cadets of America was founded in Connecticut in 1958 and is in its 39th year of operation, and although its mission has drastically changed and is geared to diverting children from falling prey to drugs and alcohol, it also provides children with a wholesome environment by teaching leadership skills, CPR, vocational skills, and a regular camping and survival program along with physical fitness and water sports. The men and women that serve as adult advisors and role models all serve without pay as volunteers and donate their professional skills to the children of this program. I congratulate and commend these men and women for their efforts and wish them every success in the continued efforts of this outstanding youth program. •

TRIBUTE TO ZVI H. MUSCAL

• Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Zvi Muscal, an exemplary businessman from Philadelphia and an outstanding community leader. Last December, the American-Jewish Community presented the 1996 Civic Achievement Award to Zvi Muscal, and I had the distinct honor of delivering the keynote address at his presentation dinner.

In 1979, Zvi left his beloved Israeli homeland to start a branch of Bank Hapoalim in Philadelphia. Like many who came to this country before him, Zvi came to America with a dream and a strong work ethic.

As the bank grew under his leadership, Zvi dedicated himself to many organizations which had a major impact on the Philadelphia community. Serving on the International City Steering Committee, the World Affairs Council, and the Philadelphia-Israel Economic Development Corp., which later became the Philadelphia-Israel Chamber of Commerce, Zvi has been a tireless advocate for business development in Philadelphia. Additionally, he has worked zealously to promote the city's cultural affairs and to support many important nonprofit organizations. In fact, the city of Philadelphia recognized Zvi's outstanding achievements and contributions by proclaiming May 19, 1985, Zvi Muscal Day.

Since then, Zvi has undertaken several business ventures. For instance, he started PhilTrade, Inc., an international trading company. Later, he and other business leaders founded the First Executive Bank. Zvi served as the bank's chief executive officer until June, 1996, when it merged with the First Republic Bank. Today, Zvi is the chairman of this institution.

As Zvi climbed the ladder of success, he strengthened his commitment to
